

The Department of Historical Studies
Presents

Prandium Lunchtime Seminar

Jan. 21, 1 PM

Room: DH3075

The Prandium Lunchtime Seminar Series
presents Kirsty Schut (UofT), “Cases of conscience for doctors in the fourteenth-century Naples”

Kirsty’s paper examines questions on medieval medical ethics, including subjects like abortion and the care for the dying, that were discussed by an early fourteenth-century theologian, John of Naples. Kirsty will argue that they are indicative of a growing interest among late medieval churchmen in what we might today call bioethics.

Historical Studies

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

MISSISSAUGA