

We're Amazing, 1, 2, 3!

Story by Leslie Kimmelman

Illustrations by Marybeth Nelson

DEAR READERS,

More than 20 years ago, my beautiful son received the diagnosis of autism, and my world changed instantly and profoundly. I knew nothing about autism, and it seemed that those around me—even the professionals—didn’t know much either.

Today, happily, that has changed. There’s greater awareness, and there has been much progress understanding autism. But it’s still a puzzle, and every child is affected differently. You’ve probably heard the saying “if you’ve met one person with autism, you’ve met one person with autism.” So what’s the most important thing for people to know? We’re all different in some way or another—that’s what makes the world an interesting place. And equally, all of us in our own way are amazing!

LESLIE KIMMELMAN
AUTHOR

Sesame Street and Autism see amazing in all children

ADVISORS

Gregory D. Abowd, Ph.D., D.Phil., Distinguished Professor, School of Interactive Computing, Georgia Institute of Technology; Scott Badesch, President/Chief Executive Officer, Autism Society of America; Julie Bascom, Deputy Executive Director, Autistic Self Advocacy Network; Peter Bell, President/Chief Executive Officer, Eden Autism Services; Scott Bellini, Ph.D., Associate Professor, School Psychology Program, Indiana University; Director, Social Skills Research Clinic (SSRC), Indiana University; Yudi Bennett, Director of Operations, Exceptional Minds; Peter Berns, Chief Executive Officer, The Arc; Leah L. Booth, MA, CCC-SLP, Associate Research Scientist, Yale Child Study Center; Liz Feld, President, Autism Speaks; Lisa Goring, Executive Vice President — Programs and Services, Autism Speaks; Isabel Hodge, Senior Program Analyst, Office of Community Support for Military Families with Special Needs, Department of Defense; Rose Jochum, Director of Internal Initiatives, Autism Society of America; Laura Klinger, Ph.D., Executive Director, University of North Carolina, TEACCH Autism Program; Sandra Magaña, Ph.D., Professor, Disability and Human Development, University of Illinois at Chicago; Rhonda McEwen, Ph.D., Assistant Professor, Institute of Communication, Culture, Information and Technology and the iSchool (Faculty of Information), University of Toronto; Ari Ne’eman, President, Autistic Self Advocacy Network; Rebecca Posante, Ph.D., Deputy Director, Office of Community Support for Military Families With Special Needs, Department of Defense “(Ret.)”; Wendy L. Stone, Ph.D., Professor, Department of Psychology, University of Washington; Director, UW READi Lab (Director & Principal Investigator, Research in Early Autism Detection and Intervention); Karen Wolf-Branigin, Senior Executive Officer, National Initiatives, The Arc; Deborah Ziegler, Ed.D., Director, Policy and Advocacy & Professional Standards, Council for Exceptional Children.

SPECIAL THANKS

The entire Sesame Street and Autism: See Amazing in All Children team

DESIGN

Kristin Richards Lauricella, Lauricella Design

A CREATION OF

sesameworkshop.

The nonprofit educational organization behind Sesame Street and so much more.

Sesame Workshop is the nonprofit educational organization behind Sesame Street which reaches 156 million children across more than 150 countries. The Workshop’s mission is to use the educational power of media to help children everywhere grow smarter, stronger, and kinder. Delivered through a variety of platforms, including television programs, digital experiences, books and community engagement, its research-based programs are tailored to the needs of the communities and countries they serve. For more information, visit us at sesameworkshop.org.

MAJOR SUPPORT PROVIDED BY

GENEROUS SUPPORT PROVIDED BY

KRISTEN ROHR