No one thing, can define us For we are complex creatures, dreamed in the mind of the creator We laugh when we should cry We cry when we should laugh We joke when in pain We smile because tears could consume us We love unconditionally and totally We understand that family should come first Yet family is not defined, solely by blood We are quick to anger, yet no one forgives faster We are loyal and we are strong When we commit, we are unwavering We have survived much, but do not mistake adaptation for resignation You will always see us, for we will always be here Standing for what we believe in, standing beside each other Doing what is right for our children, our future We remember our obligation to our mother the earth And we remember our place upon her We are a proud people and honorable people We do not always do right, for we are human And prone to the follies of humanity Yet we strive to be better, to make each other better To make the world a better place for the children I know the Creator smiles upon us, no matter where we are, or what we do For the love of a child is unconditional No matter where life takes you, walk proud

Elder Garry Sault

Elder Sault is an Ojibway Elder for Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation. His people signed over 20 pre-confederation treaties with the Crown, which covers most of the Golden Horseshoe. He is a Veteran and served in the United States Navy. He resides at Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation with his wife of 40 years and enjoys spending time with his grandchildren.

Elder Sault is also a Story Teller and has welcomed Chiefs, Premiers, Environmentalists, and many more to the traditional territory of Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation.

Welcome to the Symposium on the Importance of Indigenous Education in Ontario Classrooms

Aanii:

I would like to welcome you all to the Symposium on the Importance of Indigenous Education in Ontario Classrooms. This Symposium is located on the Treaty Lands and Territory of Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation.

As Chief of Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation, I offer a warm welcome to all guests and dignitaries to this important discussion, which aims to illuminate why it is so important for our future generations in Canada learn about Indigenous perspectives from a young age.

The historic 2015 Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) report made 94 calls to action, as a way to improve settler-Indigenous relations in Canada and counteract the devastating effects of colonialism and residential schools on Indigenous people.

One of those Calls to Action is to educate the country on the legacy of residential schools and how they impacted Indigenous people in Canada and continue to impact Indigenous communities today.

With education comes understanding. With understanding comes compassion. With compassion comes friendship.

When we can all walk the path of reconciliation together, as friends in this vast and beautiful land we call Canada, we can slowly undo the effects of colonization, together. To do that, we must encourage all educational institutions to incorporate Indigenous perspectives into their classrooms.

Thank you for attending the Symposium. We hope you will continue to encourage Indigenous education in Ontario classrooms.

Chi Miigwetch, Chief R. Stacey Laforme,

R. Thijken

December 7, 2018

Dear symposium guests,

Welcome to the University of Toronto Mississauga. It is my great honour as vice-president of the University of Toronto and principal of U of T Mississauga to extend my warmest greetings to those attending the Symposium on the Importance of Indigenous Education in Ontario Classrooms.

UTM is delighted to provide a space of friendship, with symposium hosts, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation, for the many speakers and guests from First Nations, educational institutions and communities across our province. Today, you will hear from artists, activists, educators, storytellers and experts in Indigenous scholarship, teacher education and community-driven research. You will gain perspective on topics ranging from cultural teachings and oral histories to healing through sustainability and teaching Indigenous and non-Indigenous students in ways that promote success. And you will witness the diversity of community that includes students, elders and dignitaries such as the Honourable Senator Murray Sinclair and the Honourable Justice Harry LaForme.

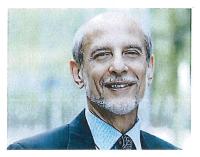

As an institution dedicated to fostering an environment in which learning and scholarship flourishes, the University of Toronto Mississauga is pleased to be involved in such an important conference. We hope that, through listening and participating in the many ceremonies, panels and discussions today, you will find support for integrating Indigenous content and methodologies in all classrooms across Ontario and Canada.

On behalf of the University of Toronto Mississauga, I welcome the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation as hosts of the traditional territory upon which our campus sits. I look forward to our future partnership in support of the University of Toronto's response to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada's Calls to Action.

Warm regards,

Whill Jorg Kull

The Honorable Justice Harry LaForme

Justice Harry S. LaForme is Ojibwa and a member of Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation located in southern Ontario. He was born and raised on his reserve where some of his family continue to reside and remain active in that First Nation's government.

Justice LaForme graduated from Osgoode Hall Law School in 1977 and was called to the Ontario Bar in 1979. He articled with the law firm of Osler, Hoskin and Harcourt; joined the firm as an associate; and, after a brief time commenced his own practice specializing in Indigenous law. During his legal practice Justice LaForme focused on matters involving the Constitution and the Charter. He has appeared before each level of Canadian Court, travelled extensively throughout Canada, and represented Canadian Indigenous interests in Geneva Switzerland, New Zealand, and the British Parliament.

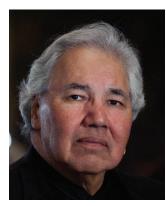

Justice LaForme served as: co-chair of the independent National Chiefs Task Force on Native Land Claims; Chief Commissioner of the Indian Commission of Ontario; Chair of the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Land Claims; and taught the "Rights of Indigenous Peoples" at Osgoode Hall Law School. In January 1994 he was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of Justice, Ontario and was – at that time - one of only 3 indigenous judges ever appointed to this level of trial court in Canada. In November 2004 he was appointed to the Ontario Court of Appeal and is the first indigenous person to be appointed to sit on any appellate court in the history of Canada.

Justice LaForme is privileged to have been honoured with: numerous Eagle Feathers including one at his swearing in at Ontario Court of Appeal and one from the National Indian Residential School Survivours Society; the National Aboriginal Achievement Award in the area of Law & Justice; a Talking stick carved by Git'san artist Ya'Ya,

Chuck Heit; a bursary created in his name for Indigenous first year law students by the University of Windsor Faculty of Law; and honouraryDoctor of Law degrees from York University; University of Windsor, the Law Society of Upper Canada, and an honourary Doctorate of Education from Nipissing University. Justice LaForme has written and published numerous articles on issues related to indigenous law and justice. He speaks frequently on many topics that include indigenous issues, indigenous law, criminal law, constitutional law and civil and human rights.

The Honourable Senator Murray Sinclair IPC

Senator Murray Sinclair served the justice system in Manitoba for over 25 years. He was the first Aboriginal Judge appointed in Manitoba and Canada's second.

He served as Co-Chair of the Aboriginal Justice Inquiry in Manitoba and as Chief Commissioner of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC). As head of the TRC, he participated in hundreds of hearings across Canada, culminating in the issuance of the TRC's report in 2015. He also oversaw an active multi-million dollar fundraising program to support various TRC events and activities, and to allow survivors to travel to attend TRC events.

Senator Sinclair has been invited to speak throughout Canada, the United States and internationally, including the Cambridge Lectures for members of the Judiciary of various Commonwealth Courts in England.

He served as an adjunct professor of law at the University of Manitoba. He was very active within his profession and his community and has won numerous awards, including the National Aboriginal Achievement Award, the Manitoba Bar Association's Equality Award (2001) and its Distinguished Service Award (2016) and has received Honorary Doctorates from 8 Canadian universities. Senator Sinclair was appointed to the Senate on April 2, 2016.

TRC Writers Panel: Three Writers for Students for the Future

Moderator: Laura Mayer, HBA, J.D. (Chi-Naakinagewin Manager, Councillor, Mississauga First Nation) Panelists:

- Brian Bellefeuille, BEd, (Gladue Report, TRC contributor -History curriculum, Father, Writer, Firekeeper)
- Paul Meggs, BEd (Former Teacher, Nunavut Department of Education, TRC contributor History & Social Studies curricula)
- Tammy Denomme, BEd (Educator Indigenous Education Lead, London District Catholic School Board).

Moderator Laura Mayer will guide panelists Bryan Bellefeuille, Paul Meggs, Tammy Denomme in a discussion on the importance of the Ontario Curriculum edits for Grade 4-6 Social Studies, Grade 7 and 8 History, and Grade 10 History. The panel will emphasize why this important work needs to continue.

330-430pm in IB110 Student Panel: Indigenous education must be a number one priority in Ontario classrooms & across Turtle Island

Moderator: Veronica King-Jamieson BEd, OCT. MCFN Councillor of Education & Awareness Panelists:

- Councillor, Cathie Jamieson, MCFN Councillor of Environmental Sustainability, HBA from UTM
- Kim Sault, BA (PACS) University of Waterloo -peace & conflict studies, BEd Brock University (Aboriginal Adult Education)
- Jai King-Green Social Services Worker diploma First Nations Technical Institute in partnership with St Lawrence College
- Amy Kelaidis, Hon. BFA, M.Ed., OCT. Director & Special Advisor, Indigenous Initiatives, Mohawk College

The panel will share their thoughts on how to teach Indigenous students in ways that promote success. Indigenous students are confronted by many barriers that can only be removed with the support of non-Indigenous people who have the power to effect change in the main stream with collaborative strategies. One of the essential outcomes in being successful are courses based on culturally sensitive and well informed teaching. This must be included in all teacher training programs in Canada. This training must include information about Indigenous people, Indigenous history, oppression, and culture, with the understanding of many other factors. It is only when all of these — first language, culture, health, attendance, racism, other priorities, and family & peer relationships — are taken into account, that success for Indigenous students will increase. There must be a recognition that the educational experiences of Indigenous students is more problematic than other students. The next steps must be to change the perspective of all teachers. What does that framework look like? How is it being done? There is no way of getting around it - collaborating with First Nations communities is essential.

1. First Nations with Schools Collective: Indigenous Scholarship and Building Capacity locally to lead in First Nation Education Transformation

Dr. Leslee White-Eye & Dr. Brent Debassige, Western University

The Collective is an evolving partnership among eight First Nations communities and the Aboriginal Education Office at the Faculty of Education, Western University. The Collective is working in a unified political and technical manner toward a common approach to achieve the jurisdiction over education goals of their respective First Nations which includes a framework for a community of practice for research that involves Indigenous scholars and community education practitioners. The presenters will share information on findings from community engagement sessions undertaken by communities, the lessons learned and how the research is being positioned within transformational change in formula funding and governance talks.

Goals of the Session:

- 1. To foster a mutually respectful partnership between a local Indigenous community and key influencers in public education in their region.
- 2. To have all stakeholders acknowledge the impact of historical Indigenous-settler relations on educational policy and reckon with the ways to dismantle those influences.
- 3. To discuss the ways forward for appropriate research in Indigenous pedagogy. For example, what are the measurements of success in public education? How can assessment include Indigenous methodology?

2. Bringing Cultural Teachings to the Classroom based on our Creation Story

Valarie King, HBA, MSW, Chartered Herbalist, Dancing Moon Holistic Centre

Valarie will share how, over the years, she has implemented culture within the classrooms at LSK Elementary school and Ekwaamjijgenang daycare centre based on the Anishnaabe creation story. The how to of how she did an in-school curriculum developed from visiting the homes of the community to gather input and ideas of what they wanted the children to learn. She took their ideas and created tools to assist in this process thus calling the curriculum "The journey within". From the beginning over 20 years ago utilizing a circle format vs a classroom setting, to moving towards land-based approaches by utilizing hands-on natural materials, the outdoors, stories, songs, medicines, pictures, circle format to enhance children's sensory skills & learning.

3. The Deepening Knowledge Project: Indigenous Perspectives in Teacher Education

Dr. Sandra Styres & Ryan Neepin, Indigenous Education Network, OISE

The Deepening Knowledge project is an Indigenous led project that works with settler allies in ways that support Indigenous resurgence in education. We work with and support student teachers and course Instructors around appropriate and respectful ways of bringing Indigenous perspectives into teacher education programming as well as in K-12 curriculum and classroom practices. DKP offers workshops, curriculum resources, and pedagogical supports through our website and in hands-on workshops. DKP's mandate is to keep Indigenous voices and perspectives at the centre of our work.

7. Seven interconnected steps research design: An Indigenous land-based methodology

Dr. Andrew Judge, Conestoga College

In this presentation Dr. Andrew Judge will deliver a captivating exposé on seven steps used by Indigenous peoples to thrive in various habitats across Turtle Island. Dr. Judge employed this method to complete his dissertation, but notes the limitations of utilizing Indigenous land-based knowledge within the constraints of the academy. Undeterred, Dr. Judge relied on his learning with Elders, land-stewards, his dreams, and the ancestors to successfully build an Indigenous foods garden in 2018, where the seven step method is currently being implemented. Join Dr. Judge as he shares the ways his goal to help revitalize land-based learning is being enacted in his community of Kitchener-Waterloo and beyond.

8. English for Academic Purposes, Culture Shock, and the Potentiality of Healing through Sustainability and Indigenousity

Shaune Rice, PhD candidate, Guidance Counselor at Long Point First Nation

Global society has witnessed remarkable change in the 21 Century in that many students relocate to study at the tertiary level and a portion will study English for Academic Purposes. Many will suffer a phenomenon known as culture shock. Culture shock is a reality that effects more than just our international students studying abroad and can be experienced by any student travelling to study including our Indigenous students. Whether within this country or global travel, students are submerged into a different culture which effects their personal self's equilibrium. Literature reveals there are many reasons why culture shock occurs. Oberg was the first to coin and define the term, culture shock is "precipitated by the anxiety that results from losing all our familiar signs and symbols of social intercourse." Colonialism can be deeply seeded as such that many could perhaps experience the phenomenon of culture shock as a post-traumatic stress disorder especially when learning a colonized language. Government officials and educators have an obligation to ensure our sojourners experience a pleasant transition from their known culture to an unknown culture.

Research question: how do EAP students overcome their fears of culture shock to learn effectively?

- 1. How do EAP students experience culture shock in the classroom?
- 2. How could the natural environment, within and outside the classroom, assist EAP students to overcome culture shock?
- 3. What meaning do EAP students give to Indigenousity?

9. From Discourse to Practice: Relational Accountability in the Academy

Dr. Robin Gray & Dr. Jennifer Adese, University of Toronto Mississauga

This session outlines key considerations for meaningful faculty, staff and student engagement with Indigenous initiatives. From recruitment and retention, practical indigenization and research ethics to the politics of representation, and recognizing Indigenous rights of ownership, access and control of Indigenous cultural heritage, this session advocates for an ethos of relational accountability to peoples, places and processes for future engagement.

Paul became a teacher in 1982 at the age of 24. He worked as a literacy tutor for immigrants with Frontier College in Toronto. He also was a jazz drummer and lover of African music and scuffled as a musician. In 1984 he took advantage of an opportunity to travel and work as a teacher in Nigeria with CUSO for 2 years. There he experienced first hand the long-term ef-fects of colonialism in education, and came to know how little he knew of his own home country, its colonial past, and its indigenous peoples. He returned to Canada in 1986 and immediately pursued work as an ESL teacher, and began looking for an outlet for his passion to work in a community-based cross-cultural teaching-learning environment. He briefly taught Grade 8 English at the Kanawake Survival School, then found his match in 1987 in Clyde River, NT, as a teacher of a CO-OP Program for middle school Inuit students. Over the next 17 years, he continued to teach, received teaching awards, develop programming, and design curriculum for the Nunavut Department of Education. In 2004 he moved south with his wife, also an educator, and their two Inuit sons, where he taught French, and continued to be involved in integrating Indigenous history and culture in the curriculum. In response to the TRC Calls to Action, he was selected by Tunngasuvvingat Inuit to be involved in the Ontario Ministry update of the History and Social Studies curricula. He goes back to Nunavut each summer to teach drumming and percussion at the Iqaluit Music Camp. He now resides in Ottawa, where he hopes to continue to contribute in any way he can to the empowerment and inclusion of the Inuit voice through education and Inuktitut language learning.
