

Strange Happenings

Strange happenings all around me,
Lying in plain sight for me to see.
Was I blind this entire time?
Pseudoscientists seem to agree.

The Piltdown Man is over yonder
And it's beginning to make me wonder
Whether the Vikings came to the USA,
Surely, it's not a blunder?

Could it be that Atlantis exists?
These persisting pseudoscientists
Claim that it must be,
Is there something that scientists have missed?

Have we already traversed the stars?
Tell us, Pakal, was your vehicle faster than cars?
Ancient Aliens on the telly
Providing us information that is rightfully ours.

Tsoukalos, Hancock, and Wolter inform
That suppressing evidence is the norm
In the scientific community
That we must reform.

Enough with the verse, it's doing us no favours. Enough with the nonsense, the lies, and the blatant racism on display by these pseudoscientists. Enough with blatantly ignoring the truth. It seems like some people just cannot accept the truth for what it is. It is possible for humans to be capable of incredible feats, such as the construction of pyramids without the use of today's technology. Also, why would anyone think Pakal had some sort of rocket ship? The Piltdown Man was just people struggling to accept that early human ancestors came from Africa. Instead of creating ludicrous explanations for how things came to be, how about just accepting the work done by very hard-working researchers who dedicate a lot of time to further our understanding of the world and of humans.
