

FAQ about Anthropology courses in Spring 2015 term as a result of the strike:

1. If I choose the credit/no credit option for an Anthropology course in the Spring 2015 term, will it be counted towards my program in Anthropology?

Yes, as long as you receive credit (pass the course). There is no need to petition, it will be automatically counted. The one exception is ANT101, please see below.

2. If I choose or have chosen the credit/no credit option for an Anthropology course in any other term, will it be counted towards my program or in Anthropology, or can it be used for entry into the program?

No, this is a special arrangement for this strike-affected term of Spring 2015 only.

3. Can I use the credit/no credit option for ANT101 as part of my entry requirement into the Anthropology BA programs?

No, the department is maintaining the requirement for at least a 65% in both ANT101 and ANT102 in order to enter the BA programs.

The Chair of the Department will review petitions from students who have encountered course complications due to the strike, however, to determine if individual exceptions are warranted. See the Petition Procedure below.

The full requirements for entry into Anthropology programs are here in the UTM

Calendar: https://student.utm.utoronto.ca/calendar/program_group.pl?Group_Id=122 We encourage students to review the program criteria for each Anthropology Subject Post.

(Note the BSc has only an overall GPA requirement; however, also remember that C/NC courses cannot be counted towards your GPA.)

Petition Procedure: Students wanting to submit a formal petition must send a formal email to the Undergraduate Administrator in Anthropology, Maria DaMota at maria.damota@utoronto.ca, outlining their request for Subject Post program consideration. Please address the petition to Professor Heather Miller, and include your student Id number and program of entry in your message.

The department realizes that this is a very stressful time for students and we will accommodate students as best we can. Please do feel free to make appointments to see the Undergraduate Administrator or the Chair if we can be of help or offer advice. We have been very impressed with the patience and maturity of our undergraduates during this difficult term.
