

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

MISSISSAUGA

Centre for Urban Environments

SEMINAR

Ecological modernization and waste management in China

DATE:
January 17, 2019

TIME:
12:10pm - 1:30pm

LOCATION:
Room # IB240
Instructional Centre

Prof. Amy Zhang
Assistant Professor,
New York University

Amy Zhang is an assistant professor of anthropology at New York University where she researches and teaches in the areas of environmental anthropology, science and technology studies, material culture and development. She is currently working on a book project on state efforts to modernize waste management infrastructures and how these attempts ground and condition the forms and limits of China's emerging urban environmental politics.

Light refreshments will be served.

For any accommodation requirements due to disability, please contact sanya.wedemiergraham@utoronto.ca.

