

Michael Lettieri: Michael Lettieri, Professor of Italian, has served as Chair of the Department of Language Studies, Associate Dean (Humanities) and Vice-Principal (Academic) at the Mississauga Campus (University of Toronto), and Director of the Italian School at Middlebury College (Vermont). Highlights from his extensive list of publications include articles and books on textual criticism, 16th-18th-century drama, and second-language teaching and learning. He co-edits the University of Toronto Press series Toronto Studies in Italian Pedagogy and Applied Linguistics, and has been recently chosen as incoming Editor of Italica. Lettieri has received several teaching awards, including the University of Toronto APUS-SAC Undergraduate Teaching Award, the Ontario Confederation of University Faculty Associations Teaching Award, the University of Toronto President's Teaching Award, and American Association of Teachers of Italian Distinguished Service Award.