Latin American and Caribbean Studies offers an exploration of Latin America and the Caribbean and their diasporas, drawing on a range of disciplinary approaches. Through diverse course offerings, students can study Latin American and Caribbean history, languages, politics, societies, cultures, religions and geographies. The program is geared toward building an engagement with the region(s) as well as with their communities in Canada and the United States. Students may take courses, offered by a number of departments, that focus on Latin America and the Caribbean. As a complement to the student’s other chosen programs, the Minor in Latin American and Caribbean Studies can prepare students for careers in a competitive global context in which the greater part of the Western Hemisphere plays an increasingly important role.

Make the most of your time at UTM!

We want to help you maximize your university experience, so we’ve pulled together information and interesting suggestions to get you started, although there are many more! As you review the chart on the inside pages, note that many of the suggestions need not be restricted to the year they are mentioned. In fact, activities such as joining an academic society, engaging with faculty and seeking opportunities to gain experience should occur in each year of your study at UTM. Read through the chart and create your own plan using My Program Plan found at www.utm.utoronto.ca/program-plans

HIS290H5—Introduction to Latin American History—a course covering the five-hundred-year sweep from the European invasion that began in 1492 to our current era. Geographically, we will move between Mexico, Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Cuba, and the borderlands between the United States and Mexico. Through lectures, primary source documents, a textbook, and feature films, this course explores the historical processes of conquest, colonization, cultural hybridity, independence movements, nation-state formation, revolution, neoliberalism, the recent Latin American turn to the Left, and outward migration.

FUTURE STUDENTS

Admission to UTM

All program areas require an Ontario Secondary School Diploma, or equivalent, with six Grade 12 U/M courses, or equivalent, including English. The admission average is calculated with English plus the next best five courses. The approximate average required for admission is mid- to high-70s. More information is available at utm.utoronto.ca/viewbook.

NOTE: During the application process, applicants will select the Humanities admissions category, but will not officially be admitted to a formal program of study (Specialist, Major, and/or Minor) until after first year.

Sneak Peek

Step into the sounds and rhythms of Latin American, Caribbean, and Spanish musical styles and their accompanied dance forms. See the historical evolution of these genres of music and dance in SPA235H5.

Why did people struggle to overthrow military dictatorships in Central America? How do we know about what happened there? And how best to tell the stories of those who envisioned more free and equal societies but had their dreams violently taken from them?
